FEMMEPHARMA CEO TO BE HONORED AT 4TH ANNUAL REGIONAL BIOTECH COUNCIL CONFERENCE

WAYNE, PA, September 20, 2004 – The Regional Biotech Council established in rural Bucks County in 2000 will hold its 4th Annual Regional Biotech Council Conference at the Pinecrest Country Club in Lansdale, PA on Friday, September 24, 2004. Co-hosted by Senator Joe Conti, Majority Policy Chairman and State Senator for the 10th Senatorial District, the event's theme is "Taking small and emerging biotechs through clinical trials and the complex of regulatory requirements – a risky and expensive endeavor for all parties involved."

Gerianne Tringali DiPiano is being honored for leading her company, FemmePharma, Inc., through the rigors of drug development in the arena of women's health.

"Gerianne's story is that of an entrepreneur who stayed the course and achieved success. She is a strong example to showcase for the Conference," said Carolyn d'Arville, Ph.D., Associate Director of the Council. "I am truly honored by this recognition and I look forward to sharing my story and experience in the hopes it will help other entrepreneurs in the region," stated Ms. Tringali DiPiano.

Focusing entirely on women's health, FemmePharma has products in late stages of development for the treatment of endometriosis, urinary incontinence and mastalgia. Recent Phase 2 clinical trials for FemmePharma's endometriosis product yielded a significant decrease in the reduction of pain associated with the disease and an absence of systemic side effects for those who participated in the trial.
