FEMMEPHARMA NAMED “COMPANY TO WATCH” BY EASTERN TECHNOLOGY COUNCIL

WAYNE, PA, November 10, 2004 – FemmePharma, Inc. , a specialty pharmaceutical company in late stages of development for the treatment of diseases and disorders disproportionately affecting women, has been named a “Company to Watch” by the Eastern Technology Council, Greater Philadelphia’s premier organization for technology leaders and companies.

“Companies to Watch” represents companies that have accomplished tremendous objectives, but the objectives may not be reflected in revenues at this stage in their growth. FemmePharma, as a development stage company, epitomizes the meaning of the category,” said Dianne Strunk, CEO of the Eastern Technology Council.

Focusing entirely on women’s health, FemmePharma has products in late stages of development for the treatment of endometriosis, urinary incontinence and mastalgia. Recent Phase 2 clinical trials for the Company’s endometriosis product yielded a significant reduction of the pain associated with the disease and an absence of systemic side effects for those who participated in the trial.

FemmePharma will be honored at the upcoming 12th Annual Enterprise Awards on Thursday, November 11, 2004 at the Pennsylvania Convention Center.
